

Two Schools—One New Way to Clean

Maternity B.V.M. Elementary School in Bourbonnais, IL, and Mount Vernon Middle School in Fortville, IN, have two things in common:

1. They both have made recent additions to their schools.
2. They both chose No-Touch Cleaning systems from Kaivac to keep their new school additions clean.

Dean Benoit heads the maintenance department at Maternity B.V.M., a small school of just 240 students. “After we added a new wing of classrooms, we assumed we would need to hire another custodian,” says Benoit. “But now, because of the Kaivac No-Touch Cleaning™ system, we’re just fine.”

The KaiVac machines come in three sizes, small to large, but are all full-featured no-touch cleaning systems. They are all also effortlessly maneuver in and out of classrooms, locker rooms, restrooms, kitchens, and stairwells.

“After I saw the KaiVac demonstrated, I convinced the school board that the machine would not only save us time—and money—but would be a healthier way to clean,” says Benoit. “And, now that we purchased one, they agree.”

Benoit says he told the board that using traditional cleaning tools, it takes 40 minutes for one custodian to clean each of the school’s six restrooms, a total of four hours per night. “With the KaiVac, we cut that down to just under 20 minutes [for each restroom], a 50 percent reduction in time.”

Additionally, Benoit says he no longer needs to touch toilets or urinals or to handle soiled mop heads and lift heavy buckets. “We just spray the bathroom down, vacuum it up, and we’re done. It’s healthier, quick, and thorough. Even our pastor likes the KaiVac and the way it cleans.”
